I took all the lights. I got a quote from my guy down here and he was about 25,000. Jim was 25 too and came down to 22 which is about right.

I will call you later.

Thanks Bob!

We look forward to getting the quotes and will probably need to speak to you again regarding poured vs precast foundation.

I thought you had recd a quote from Jim d and you thought he was a bit high? Jim has been very helpful and has helped out when we needed it. I do think he is a good guy. But if we have another quote to compare him to, nothing worn with asking him to match if other guy is lower.

Did you take the lights from the front porch? We noticed they are gone and we are hoping you took them. We wanted you to have.

Lesley and Ike,

Well we have the demo permit. Things are going to start happening quickly. I am getting bids on a poured wall foundation to compare them to the precast foundation. I am going to arrange to get temporary electric set up,(An electrician already has the paper work set up). I have meetings with the both the poured wall guys and Superior walls. I am meeting another excavator on Tuesday along with another framer from your area. In addition I am meeting with the lumber yard that is doing take offs on your lumber and windows.

I haven't received a bid for the excavation but we have signed Jim Denkhman to do the knock down.

Now is the time to order the foundation and or sign the poured guy. We will probably get the foundation print in a couple weeks.

By the way happy birthday Lesley.

Bob
