I was just asking as I was going to figure out what to order; however, in the meantime, Pat emailed me that he was looking forward to basketball and a relaxing night with me and Henry, ugh! I think I better leave it alone. I actually was considering skipping practice and meeting you at Cherry Street for a glass of wine but since you are going to the game that probably won't work timewise. You will see that my husband sometime can be a bit reclusive!! BTW though, don't take it personally as I actually didn't even say anything directly about you guys and since that is what his email says I think I will leave it alone. If we weren't going to see you Sunday I would have pushed it! I you change your mind and end up going to Cherry Street instead of the game or you want to meet for wine or come here for wine any time between 6-8 I could skip ball and just have them go. No pressure as I am happy to go to basketball or not!!

We would want food too cause we will not eat before I don't think...

Hair is a long process but love it when it's done!! Love being home. Went to Costco! Waitin for Ty now and I get to take him to lax! It's so nice to get to see him play!

Can't wait to hear about Jules house! :)

I am leaning toward saying Pat might want to just chill but since I want to see you I am going to ask him again. I just know how he feels on Friday and he has been preparing for his first "Mock" this week which has been stressful. Anyway, it seems like just when I decide to say we're going to stay in he turns around and asks why we aren't with someone!! Anyway, after my hair I will connect with him. Call u after hair!!

> Hey Paula! Wanted you to know we are going to the NCHS basketball game tonight. We will leave at 8pm... We'd be up for pizza at your house or CS (could be a long wait though) ! Or if Pat is tired cause it's Friday and he doesn't want visitors can totally understand if he wants to chill! Just wanted you to know we are available later tonight. Have fun getting the blond put back in your hair!!
