[REDACTED] and Sue say it is very self explanatory...they will both be around tomorrow as well...so we will be able to get it done!

>>> Hi [REDACTED]...

>>> How nice! an Ipad!! Congratulations...I actually do not have an Ipad and am not versed in getting you 'up and running', however, I have spoken with [REDACTED] and Sue who both understand this gadget...

>>> From what I understand you will need to sync your new Ipad with your laptop or computer that you own. Do you have a lap top or a computer at home? They are then suggesting that you either make an appointment at an Apple store and have them help you or possibly we could get Scott (the guy who was helping Jeffrey out and our office with all our computer issues...I would of course have to ask Jeffrey if this was ok first.) When it comes to 'apps' it is very personal and you are going to want what you want! I'm sure the Apple store or Scott or just talking to people about what kind of Apps they like and are out there you can come up with some things. I have an Iphone and the only Apps I have are the weather channel, angry birds (for my son!) and Poynt (which I have used to find restaurants and movies in whatever area I am in) Ha! That is the extent of my Apps! I do think once you set up your Ipad, there should be an App Store which you can peruse.

>>>

>>> But getting back to step 1...do you have a computer you can link this to and set it up through your own iTunes account?
