Dear Friend,

On Both Sides Now this week, Mary Matalin and Hilary Rosen debate justice and economics. Should Dominick Strauss Kahn walk? How did it happen that gays will soon walk down down the aisle in New York?

On the big issue of the debt and default, Hilary gives Obama three cheers for calling out the GOP fact-defying argument that more revenues won't close the deficit; Mary, however, chides the President's "Jekell-and-Hyde" approach and lurch between Kumbaya and class warfare. But who's declaring class war on whom? Listen here.

Then the women exchange on four "Quick Takes" in the news: Murdoch, McDonald's, Shuttle and Santorum.

Some consensus, some conflict. But both sides.

Best,

Mark Green
