seems a bit much. Obviously I'm doing something wrong though! Or maybe we need to add the syncing thing to this computer? I don't have that black icon that you told me to click on when I plugged my blackberry in at the office.

that we synced to my computer in the office? Does it not automatically go to all my calendars when you sync at one? Also, I entered a new name and phone number in the directory in my computer at home yesterday, but it was not in this computer when i came here today? So i had to re-enter in the directory here at JE's.

things at all my computers? I can't tell you how important it is that everything i put in my calendar, no matter where I put it in or even if i enter it into my phone I need to see it everywhere else. I am spending alot of time double entering things and I think I may go a little cookoo soon! I really liked not having to ever plug my phone in to a computer and sync...never had to do that..it just all worked...
