Hi Lesley,

We are less than two weeks away from training 15 new facilitators for our School Resiliency Program. Half a dozen school superintendents and more high school principals are also onboard in addition to the six individual schools that have signed up. Tomorrow, I will send you a 4 minute video that makes the case for the real reason we are launching this initiative. I've already sent you the PDF for this to pass on to Jeffrey and attach it here once again.

Next week, I will be in South Florida (Fort Lauderdale & Boca Raton area - quite near West Palm) if Jeffrey happens to be there between November 4-9. I'd really appreciate an opportunity to speak with him about this project which we see expanding through the state and beyond in the next year. This is part of a nationwide push to bring social emotional learning to schools. This project is the seed and we need funding to launch it.

Can you help me arrange a time to talk with Jeffrey soon?

Much thanks,

William
