Absolutely not!! I LOVE it and this will be a nice time to go. Not as many tourists and perhaps not as many boats. I stayed in like a Marriott or something on the water. Not 5 star but way better than average. Let me look for a minute ..

I was looking to drive into work Friday and go straight there and come back Sunday night - Either this weekend or the next.

Never been to Newport, RI but the way you described it sounds really cool!! Where did you stay? I appreciate how low key that is but still in town so I'm not in the middle of nowhere by myself haha

Hmmm I LOVE Newport, RI and have been there solo (we'll sort of -ike was there for a conference so my days I was all alone). Have you ever been? You can tour mansions along the water...great shopping and excellent food. Lots of places on the water. And I would recommend staying right in town at one of the hotels. You can walk the cliff walk. Go to Inn at Castle Hill for drinks (that will require an Uber). Watch the sunset ...see all the boats that come in...they have a place you can watch a glass blower blow glass ornaments and stuff. I ate lobster rolls every day for lunch. Made it a completion 😊. More low key than hamptons. And you can drive there. Or train I think?! When do you want to go? I know nothing about LI other than Hamptons. And I did like the Hamptons when I used to go. I would suggest south Hampton as it is the largest of all the Hamptons with more to do and its more central so you can Uber to other towns. Sag Harbour is cool too. But [REDACTED] still choose south Hampton
