Hi Jeffrey, I was working in another version of your house.

When I realize that you said that the entire Island is your house

Well, I figure out that if is so

Then one of the main conditions for the designers is to be able to see your future house, from the Little St James house And vice versa

I mean that every day and every night you will be able to spot portion of the different house locations from where ever you are

In the attached drawings you will notice that we can separate the main function of the new house in order to achieve your needs.

Example:

The Dining breakfast & kitchen area will be in one location, with other supports (like a smaller lounge area terraces etc) to make it more comfortable.

On the contrary the Main living room will be in another location with a small breakfast or dining pantry and terrace.

Existing roads to the beach or have other ways of transport can connect both as the hills elevators use in Monaco

Your Master Bedroom will have all the conveniences of a Master Suite on any resort and will be the most private area

Of course I'm not saying that all your buildings have to be exposed to the East winds but what I'm saying is that you should be able to spot every single location.

By exposing portion of the buildings to the little St James House

I hope I can get my idea through,

Regards
