New Canaan Parking Enforcement Officers Now on Bikes, Too

By Michael Dinan

Parking enforcement officers who long have patrolled downtown New Canaan on foot or from one of three town-issued vehicles, now can be seen keeping motorists out of loading zones, handicapped spaces and crosswalks from bicycles. Days after the start of a fiscal year that saw a request for a fourth vehicle pushed out, the New [...]

New Canaan Police, Wilton Vet Aid Mead Park Snapping Turtle with Fishhook Caught in Its Mouth

By Michael Dinan

New Canaan Police and a Wilton-based veterinary group this weekend worked together to ensure the safety of a large snapping turtle at Mead Pond that had a fishhook caught in its mouth. At about 12:40 p.m. on Saturday, the police department's Animal Control section received a flurry of calls regarding a large snapping turtle in [...]

Op-Ed: Why I'm Running for Town Council

By Tom Butterworth

I'm a sucker for a good cause. I'm always inspired by the film classic, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," where an ordinary citizen fights for what he believes is right. I found a good cause at the April 24 meeting of the Utilities Commission, at which public input was sought on a proposal to improve [...]

Op-Ed: Calling for a Fresh Look at Municipal Spending

By Kit Devereaux

The foremost issue on most voters' minds is the financial condition of New Canaan. Property owners feel the pinch of persistent tax increases in the face of lowered property values. With a nod to zero-based budgeting, let's start by looking at our budgets item by item. In our current system, department managers defend their proposed [...]
