

From: Lesley Groff <[REDACTED]>
To: Mom and Randy Wright <[REDACTED]>
Cc: Mom and Randy Wright <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Re: Our Meeting Re Ty at the end of the School Year 2017
Date: Thu, 13 Jul 2017 13:56:34 +0000

I will go with we push and he complies after an exchange of words... but once he gets in with the tutor he always works hard. So I guess in the end, it is ok. I wish he were more willing...it will come with time and maturity?

...being great does not come easy...we must work at it! which includes parenting! easier to just hand him a TV remote or hand held device along with a bag of candy and say 'OK here you go!' ...but we won't do that

> On Jul 12, 2017, at 7:35 PM, Diana Wright <[REDACTED]> wrote:

>
> Maybe "motivated" is too strong a word - How about at least "willing" ?!
>
> He's smart and knows he needs to work on this stuff to achieve success in > life. He will cooperate! Love mom

> -----Original Message-----

> From: Lesley Groff [mailto:[REDACTED]]
> Sent: Wednesday, July 12, 2017 9:47 AM
> To: Mom and Randy Wright
> Cc: Mom and Randy Wright
> Subject: Re: Our Meeting Re Ty at the end of the School Year 2017

>
> I wish he was MORE self motivated actually.he pushes back hard when I ask > him to read or work on math trust me.which I'm sure almost 90% of kids > do..that is how they are wired (there are some anomalies).but who wants to > do math when you can hang with your friends and be potatoes!

>
> I'm glad you agree on the special ed labeling.Ike was FOR IT and I really > want to steer clear. LOVE YOU!!

>> On Jul 11, 2017, at 6:00 PM, Diana Wright <[REDACTED]>
>> wrote:

>>
>> Alrighty then, there's work to be done but everyone agrees you're at a >> very >> good starting place! Ty is self-motivated and has all his teachers >> 'charmed'! He should come through just fine.

>>
>> I agree with you, try VERY hard NOT to let him get slipped into the >> category >> of "special education". That could have a demoralizing effect on Ty. He >> needs a POSITIVE attitude going forward.

>>
>> You're doing Great Parenting! Love mom

>> -----Original Message-----

>> From: Lesley Groff [mailto:[REDACTED]]
>> Sent: Tuesday, July 11, 2017 1:34 PM
>> To: Mom and Randy Wright
>> Subject: Our Meeting Re Ty at the end of the School Year 2017

>>
>> HI Mom.As promised (awhile ago!) here is the report we rec'd re Ty.it is >> basically all very NORMAL and AVERAGE.accept for spelling.we were told if >> anything was to be on the low side, they would choose spelling every time.

>> Spelling will come and with "spell check" please! Makes life easier..
>>
>> Bottom line, we have a math tutor and a reading comprehension tutor for Ty >> coming once a week each for the summer.when the school year starts, he > will >> remain in Tier II help. This means during his 'workshop' period he will > go >> to the Learning Center for extra help everyday. Apparently all the kids > go
>> in different directions during this period depending on what they need.
>>
>> The Special Ed Administrator for 5-8th grades joined our second meeting we >> had (after the testing was complete) She was pretty adamant that if Ty > does >> not improve come Halloween, he should go to Special Ed.but I don't want > him >> to.I don't want him to be labeled.I am SO hoping he will come around and >> things will naturally start sinking in.
>>
>> All in all it was a good meeting. All the teachers and the psychologist >> complimented Ty over and over again.just a great kid in general.a pleasure >> to be around.His tutor's always tell me he works hard ..so all good stuff >> there.We still have not said anything to Ty about Special Ed.we did let > him
>> know he needs to work on constructing paragraphs... being able to extract >> what is important and write complete, well thought out sentences. LOVE, > Les
>>
>>
>