Well yes he got it. I also think he will start to see his team splinter. If Ethan really goes to another school then NC will have very little chance of success. If we keep Ty, Blake, Ej and Mack we can build around them. But if not it is not worth it. Ty can focus on two sports and be very good at both. Lift weights, do 7 on 7 football, do indoor box ect during the winter. He could even be great at track if he chose that direction but I do to think he will. Lax will be good for nc

you spoke to Ty about how we can see basketball at his age is changing..the tall guys can just smack the ball out of the way...and how LAX and Hockey are kids who all look like Ty...etc...LAX or Football is Ty's hope for college...not Basketball...

We can ask Ty about the clinics but I think he will say no...let me figure out which ones exactly he could go to... for $75 even if he went to 3 of them I think it would be good. shoot, we just paid $90 for him to play 2 LAX games on Sunday!...agree he needs practice with the long stick and I think he will work harder with his buddies and some coaching...

I really do not know, I think we ask Ty if he will go in the yard and work on his own or wants to do this with friends.

I think he has had a ton of lax and will be ready to go and for sure is A team. At same time he needs to learn how to use this new long stick. It will take time and the clincs may do him well

What conversation I have so many with him

I did not sign Ty up for this...won't we still have lots of basketball and he has the 3 different Eclipse LAX stuff... box, U13 and Advanced...looking quickly Ty could attend 6 of the lessons...and it is WEATHER permitting...fields look soggy to me at the moment...maybe even if he makes 3 of the lessons though it would be good? I do think your LAX conversation the other day made an impact...
