Im sympathetic. you need some wins. its awful dealing with theses morons. stifled by the stupidity and like running in deep mud, requires slowing down and careful steps -take less effort and acheives the same result. however, these are the times that short mid and long term strategy , required. there is something very odd - a malaise has descended . on those usually passionate . about xy or z. . to some extent i call it the smartphone dilemma . no one is really passionate about the next iphone as the marginal benefit is really not that great. .

An American all star game takes the best position player from each league. So Brazil forward, France goalie. UAE. Back. Etc. . The football all stars represent the best the world has to offer. No country rivalry , only sport. At a level never seen before. Sponsors would be easy. Would have a audience as large as World Cup finals. . as every country would watch as opposed to only the two finalists.

In fact they could have the top 8 goalies in the world. And each one plays a quarter time. Or can switch sides .

The idea is great! There is something called World Tolerance Day. That could be the timing. Don't think World Economic Forum in Davos is right place. There are two, three meters of snow there in January! I am thinking of Abu Dhabi. They have a Ministry for Tolerance, which is looking for what to do. I know the minister well.

Or IPI. UN is too bureaucratic and being a membership organization it would be politicized. WEF could be a partner. They are not a membership org. Klaus decides everything! Venue could be Abu Dhabi.

On another matter: Gates didn't answer email. However I had a good conversation with Chris Elias, head of the foundation on the phone. He is setting up a meeting with the head of Gates Foundation in London when I'm back from Davos. Would still be good to see Gates in Davos.

On another: Rita came back and said she would be helpful with Edward!!
