And it's annoying if people write your hard work off as shit if you have done it from one day to the next instead of using weeks/ months

I think probably the wisest thing (not that it was my choice, as we can see I am still single whereas he had a fiancé a month after we split) was letting someone else go through it.

I mean for sure crystal has huge financial advantage and has learned life changing things.
But I just can't imagine the heartache and emotional pain and whether the other benefits can offset that. I suppose depends on each individual. But also she was a drug taking burner so didnt have far to go to be on his level of lifestyle. For me seeing him like this would have been heartbreaking. It still is but in a very manageable way.

I watched him work so so hard to build this and his credibility, and now he's just throwing it all away! He could have taken such a different spin and have respect from many now.

But he worked so hard to fight his past and gain respect and get investors, and he deserved it, I always believed in him and his smartness. But all that he worked for I feel like he throws away. Not in a monetary sense but in building up credibility.
