Cool. I do! Why don't you call me when you're free. I'm just home ordering food too. Yummy.

LAME. he is not addressing your needs- its all about him.
What about respecting you and what you need? What about not acting like a child and owning up to ones actions? No, instead he resorts to, again (sigh), childish behavior.
"I am always around to talk"- so instead of addressing your email- he expects YOU to do all the work. He can just send you meaningless texts.

How do you feel? I am ordering food now but can talk after if you want to call!!!

Your email was the definition of a shit sandwich. I am Always around to talk but if you want no more communication than that is fine too. 3 and a half years and you do this over the phone without even the option of speaking face to face. That is disrespectful to no end.

I'm not sure yet what my schedule is going to be. I have 2 boxes of your clothes I was going to send out, and a bag with more breakable/valuable things I don't want to ship(lobster, jade mask, Cartier watch,etc) Your piano and bull skull are at 71st, so I would have to bring those back over if you wanted those. Obviously the piano will have to be shipped at some point, or brought down on the plane if that ever happens.

You said before you aren't making your decision to come based on me, but then you got mad because I didn't try and stay in NY when I was due to leave very early morning the next day for work. I feel like you keep trying to have tidbits of communication, but nothing of substance. You send me a photo of your hospital tray "by accident" on 2/8/12. The paperwork on the tray was dated 2/7/12. It doesn't seem like you would send someone a photo of day old food and say "food finally". If you wanted me to know you were in the hospital, just tell me. You still haven't responded to my long email. You don't seem interested in talking about or addressing some serious issues that concern me. I can't ignore them. If you can't address them right now or don't want to talk about it, then that's fine, but then I need some space. I can't keep playing these games.
