Hi Karyna,

I did a bit of research to confirm what I said in our phone call. There are basically 2 options to enable printing from iPad to a Pro Photo printer:

Option 1: Printopia & Existing Epson Stylus Pro 3800

This software (<https://www.decisivetactics.com/products/printopia/> $20) installs on any Mac directly connected to the printer and shares it out over the wireless (& wired) network. It could either be installed on JEE's computer or on another Mac (as long as that Mac is setup to print to the Epson).

I've played with the software before. It might be challenging to setup if you're not familiar with printer terminology. The Mac it is installed on needs to be logged in, running and connected to the printer at all times for the printer to be available. It also depends on that older printer continuing to work well.

This means there are several different parts that could go wrong, so trying to troubleshoot any problems would be difficult.

Option 2: New Epson SureColor p600

I think this is the printer you have on the 5th floor now. It has WiFi & iOS (iPhone & iPad) support built-in, so I'm much more confident in the reliability of this setup. It is, of course, a bit larger than the existing Stylus 3800 tho.
