

THE TIMES

No. 64394

THURSDAY, JUNE 30, 1994

49

Breakdown of royal marriages blamed on media pressure — 'the camera is always watching'

Divorce is no bar to throne says Prince

By Roger Mearns

Prince Charles has said that a divorce is no bar to the throne, and that he would not be deterred from marrying a divorcee.

The prince, who is engaged to Camilla Parker Bowles, said he would not be deterred from marrying a divorcee, even if she had been married to a royal.

He said he would not be deterred from marrying a divorcee, even if she had been married to a royal.

He said he would not be deterred from marrying a divorcee, even if she had been married to a royal.

He said he would not be deterred from marrying a divorcee, even if she had been married to a royal.

Burst tyre leads royal jet pilot off the runway

By Paul Hogg and Michael Moran

A burst tyre on the runway of a royal jet led to a dramatic landing by the pilot, who was forced to abort a take-off attempt.

The pilot, who was flying the jet to a royal event, was forced to abort a take-off attempt when a tyre burst on the runway.

The pilot, who was flying the jet to a royal event, was forced to abort a take-off attempt when a tyre burst on the runway.

