Hey guys,

I've drawn the skull onto a picture of the wall where the mirror is and I think this is a better approach than installing it in the window niche. The skull is more approachable and can be better appreciated on the wall. I've also played around with having the mirror option in the back and it looks fine but not necessary. Installing it on the wall would be quick & easy and if you want to change it up, it would be a lot less hassle to remove it as opposed to installing it in the window. Please let me know your thoughts and ideas!

Thanks,
DAS
