Interesting. Falafel, babaganosh, hummus, that type of thing plus lots of other things ive never seen before. It is in a huge tent with a massive buffet and tables in the middle surrounded by couch lounge areas where they bring you hookas and more food and drinks. They stay eating till 2 or 3am. And this tent has dinner like this every night during Ramadan. And there are "prayer rooms" right next to the bathrooms. Crazy

Not sure what that means for tonight. I'm perfectly fine not doing anything, but I am getting antsy being here already. I don't like having to be in place I don't like.
