Let's ask him, I don't know if he has to do it, and I can not call the embassy to find out. Whatever they say on that page should be the case..

so I see that you need:

if you are staying with family or friend(s) you must present a certificate of board and lodging "Attestation d'Accueil", which has to be obtained by your relatives or friends at the city hall ("Mairie"). The original needs to be stamped by this consulate to be valid and should be presented upon arrival in France.

...I guess I will just ask Antoine in an email and cc you on it for a letter inviting you to stay at his home...but does he need to take this letter to city hall and have it stamped by consulate? AT least lets hurry and get an email out to him...maybe he had done it before and knows requirements?
