Smart Furniture accepts Visa, MasterCard, American Express, and Discover. We also accept checks and money orders. For the fastest delivery and most convenient ordering, we recommend using a credit card to secure your purchase.

We do obtain an authorization on your card at the time of your order for the full amount of your order, which may appear temporarily as a charge on your account statement, but it is only an authorization and usually falls away after 24-48 hours depending on the policies of your credit card provider. We also obtain authorizations for the outstanding balance of your order if A) your order partially ships or B) the existing authorization is about to expire. Should the re-authorization not be successful, we will contact you for new payment information.

We also accept payments via PayPal, Google Checkout, Amazon Payments, PriceWaiter (Stripe), and Affirm. Listed below are how each of these payment methods authorize and charge your credit card:

- PayPal: In most cases, payments through PayPal both authorize and charge to your credit card up front, though there are instances where only the authorization is made. In this case, the authorization lasts 29 days, after which your card will then be charged. We don't have a way of knowing which will be the case for your order so if you absolutely need your card billed when it ships please use a credit card for payment and not PayPal.
- PriceWaiter: Payments through PriceWaiter authorize and charge to your credit card or PayPal account up front when you place your order.

- Affirm: Terms and approval are handled through affirm. Payment is captured at the time of the order's shipment. Monthly bills are then sent to you directly from Affirm.
- Amazon Payments: Amazon collects payment for orders using their checkout system up front. If you absolutely need your card billed when it ships please use a credit card for payment and not Amazon Payments.
