

Ghislaine:

So, can you physically feel your blood pressure go up when you're angry? I can, and did this evening. I discovered yet another email that I hadn't seen from this morning.

This is the second time that @S%#& slandered someone that I hold in high regard. I took the opportunity several months ago to cost him a huge commission and any chance of commissions with one of the largest agencies in the country.

I shared the emails with you this morning because I felt it was affecting my ability to recruit good candidates. And quite frankly, because I was frustrated and wanted someone to talk to. Obviously the second reason isn't acceptable. I'm sorry.

Nothing is to be gained by your seeing these emails. I would like you to agree that we should delete them. Anyone who matters knows this guy isn't ethical and no better than a trashy tabloid.

As I mentioned, I did in fact read this trash on the Internet prior to accepting this position and chose to disregard it based on the fact that I am a superior judge of character and know how the press twist and turn things. Also, I can honestly say I haven't heard anything from our staff that I can't say "SO WHAT!". As you know, I've heard too much recently.