

Well you have been difficult to catch up with. You sounded rather hassled when we spoke so briefly! On at least one occasion you were with the wax in a very important area!

I was only going to say that I am leaving this morning for Barbados and as usual my policeman is getting into a panic over where I am going and when. I'm not! I also have to have a change of policeman half way through this break because I don't have enough to do the whole thing and do all the other forthcoming international trips and their attendant reces so one has to come back to go on to do a recce for another trip!

He is planned to arrive in Miami on Friday 5th.

I would love to stay with you in Palm Beach to get some of your input time as I am in desperate need of your influence to relax me again. But if you cannot take me I will then try to get to stay with the Lauders just up the road.

I haven't approached them yet but it might be more polite if I could at least ask sometime fairly soon as it is next weekend.

I will ring you this afternoon when I arrive in Barbados. They are GMT +4 so I'll ring after lunch. I have no idea where you are but probably either the island or PB.

Speak later!

Masses of love A xxx