i'm trying to remember what we said about you. we were saying that when we met you and you told us what you really do for a living, about your alleged affair with royalty, and the references to your father the media baron, etc... that it was all kind of hard to believe. so we were all speculating about you.

the verdict was, we believe you.

oh, we were also talking about how lovely you looked -- your décolletage in particular. just a bunch of boys talking about you behind your back.

you aren't talking behind my back, are you?
