Yes. She's early on her career, but I think that her synthesis of design/engineering/science/art, if done well, will be interesting. I'm getting her to help with Tokyo's 20 year plan. She's working with Mori Building, who Tom Pritzker is connected to. They love her work, but they're a bit stingy.

Yeah, the glass stuff is still in the engineering side, but once she masters the engineering around it, she'll take it to the next level. She's very good at getting other people at MIT to collaborate.
