

From: [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]>

Subject: Report #150: Haram

Date: Thu, 13 Jan 2011 17:15:01 +0000

Attachments: Door_sign.jpg

---

Hallo kids!

When the watchman walked by my frontdoor with a potential tenant, the person saw my sign (see attached again) and said: "Haram?"

Haram means forbidden. I think the sign serves it's purpose...

There is a dispute between the UAE and Canada regarding expanded landing rights in Canada. The UAE acted very juvenile and now charges Canadian citizens high fees for visas. A Canadian newspaper said: "When the UAE stops behaving like a two-year-old in the grocery store cookie aisle, Canada will likely be more than ready to talk. Until then, if the UAE wants to hold its breath until it turns blue -- let it turn blue."

Knowing the UAE, it will turn purple.

I went to a dermatologist to check some bumps I have on my throat. She asked me: "Where???" I said that my throat was covered with small bumps. She took out the biggest magnifying glass with a huge lens: "Where???" Finally after a lot of searching and not finding the bumps she asked me: "Does it itch?"

"No..."

"So how does it bother you?"

"It's there..."

"Don't worry."

Per true Arab-spirit the invisible bumps didn't stop her from prescribing three creams and call me back for check-up in three weeks.

Be safe and enjoy your snowdays! I am freezing my ass off in +21 C.

--

[REDACTED]