 Milken Institute

 July 2016

See highlights from the National Conventions

Milken Institute at the National Conventions

The Milken Institute convened a series of policy forums in partnership with the Bipartisan Policy Center at the Republican National Convention in Cleveland and the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia. The forums provided an opportunity to hear political and business leaders as well as Institute experts share their policy ideas and perspectives on medical innovation, economic growth, tax policy and global competitiveness.

New Milken Institute Review Online

The latest issue of our flagship publication is now available. This edition features "Social Mobility, a Promise That Could Still Be Kept," by Richard Reeves and Isabel Sawhill. Using the Social Genome Model and its rich database pioneered at Brookings, they find that intervening early and often in a child's life has a surprisingly big impact. The gap of almost 20 percentage points in the chances of low-income and high-income children reaching the middle class by age 40 shrinks to 6 percentage points. Read the Review »

Why Housing Reform Still Matters

By Michael Bright and Ed DeMarco

Eight years after the mortgage meltdown, America's housing system remains broken, serving neither taxpayers nor homeowners properly. This paper is designed to help policymakers phase out the conservatorship of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac and put our housing finance system on a path to stability. Read the report »

Dodd-Frank: Washington, We Have a Problem

By Claude Lopez and Elham Saeidinezhad

The Dodd-Frank Act is the most far-reaching financial regulatory reform in the U.S. since the nation emerged from the Great Depression. While the public debate is often highly politicized, this paper assesses Dodd-Frank implementation in light of its initial goal of building "a safer, more stable financial system."
