I have spoken to you many a times regarding the issue I am having with that girl from Scottsdale Punch line she is a rotten bitch that consistently makes shit up - think she is a total psychopath - great at making up stories that are convincing

I mentioned before what started out 10 years ago as a business Deal - flipped a house or two - then bought some stupid ring she was going to flip yet never did - then to horses which actually isn't that bad on increased value but the game doesn't stop- which I wish it could stop

My issue is that years ago I made the decision to keep the bs business going rather then take the chance that she Attacks the family - makes shit up about us and I'm left defending myself against some psycho out if her mind bitch - I try to appease the situation by taking her calls - almost daily. Seems the easy way out is by spending 1 minute on the phone vs who knows whats next

Punch line is - I have been concerned for a while now - distraught -thinking that this could get out of control and effect my family -and effect my kids in how they see me as a dad - we have spoken many a times how I love my family - especially the girls - I could never imagine not being close to them - not living with them. I love them so much - they mean everything to me - I never want to be with out them

So I need your help on trying to figure things out - or at least how I can personally. Calm down and not be so stressed out about anything ever coming between me and my family

If you can give it some thought - I think you said you would be around in a week or two

Sorry for the ramble - but woke up in a panic today
