Yes, actually spoke to him last night about it.

Jay's background with this specific drug is so unique as he was formally retained by Pfizer Pharmaceuticals to educate & train Doctors Nationally on Neurontin & it's science, it's uses, it's contra-indications, etc...

He could write volumes of info about it but in Jay's genius he is succinct & direct especially when it comes to Q & A on such an important drug such as Neurontin.

Jay said it's okay to contact him directly to review, (I'll copy him on this).

Tell him about anything else you've taken or have been prescribed.

In addition and as you know I'm always concerned when Doctors (who mean well) indiscriminately prescribe medication to you (Medrol Dose Packs) without often knowing everything they can about you, your history, your metabolism, your genetics, your other meds., etc. etc.

Certain drugs have more cognitive effects than others & we should always know the short-term & longer term effects of such.

It's simply important to use all the "arms-length" outlets you have to learn about what's the BEST medical decision at that time for you & using what I am now calling a "Medical Security Team" which I believe everyone should have (provided that they have the Medical pedigree and/or the extended personal history) to always act as a point of counsel, reason, knowledge & confidence in assisting/guiding us in what we are putting in our bodies (i.e.meds) or thru our bodies (i.e. injections, epidurals, surgeries) to make the most informed decision to keep us at MAXIMUM health potential & our bodies "train on the tracks" always moving forward...
