Saif and I met with [REDACTED] today at the agency.

We talked with her about her expectations, what she'd like to do, where was she coming from, her connections in fashion/art in France and Italy...

She made clear that she wanted to leave Marilyn as they used her image at the beginning and now it's starting to decline in terms of projects and editos... She was not eager to have a Milan agency but she definitely would like a new management with people who can help her using the connections she has through different fashion projects and ambassadorships with houses.

She attended Chanel show earlier today and is close to them so maybe explore more in that direction/relationship with Karl and his team, even with Fendi.

We have her contact so we'll reach her end of the week to discuss a bit about upcoming projects. We really liked her, she is beautiful, chic and curious, enthusiastic and a very interesting profile to represent at Next.

Thanks for introducing her to us, we'll keep you posted.
