I can try to write something when I finish my homework but what you gave me is not comparable

- 1) The topic you gave me isn't the analysis of an extract ( not comparable )
- 2) I've done something good because I felt concerned by the subject.
- 3) I havn't any interest in writing about South of France
- 4) I've always been good in analyzing texts since high school
- 5) I don't know how to write about my own thoughts
- 6) I have made the effort. If you don't believe me it's ok for me. I don't need to prove anything
- 7) I have school homework to do right now

I made an effort and this is your reaction ?! Not very stimulating... [REDACTED] helped me correct some words and sentences after I showed her but the paragraph is mine.

This is how it looked like at the beginning ( do you see much difference ??? ) :

In her thesis, the author infers that all women need financial security and the privacy of their own room in order to create art. In fact, she expresses this idea of anger and frustration in many ways throughout her book using analogies and metaphors. We are immediately immersed in her world of thoughts where women are trapped and discriminated by social institutions such as libraries. For example, In one of her extracts, we can perceive the sacred image of the library ( heaven's door ) with a man standing in front of it and denying her admission. In this case, it is possible to infer that the man represents the devil. To her surprise he is wearing a "black gown" instead of "white wings". In addition, her anger is emphasised by the repetition of the words "never", "never will I" which gives more weight to her argument. In this chapter, we can clearly feel the oppression and the pain she is suffering. For this reason, wealth is regularly cited as a necessary ingredient for creativity and a way of establishing her own "rules".
