1) Seat Vibration Noise for Jojo can be turned off from Lane Departure Settings (see below)

2) Jojo and I met with Stefano (owner of shop where Michael Angelo used to work)

a) Bench

-> he can make bench seat if you would like or can try to order directly from GMC if he can obtain part # and VIN that had one factory built

Stefano said GMC will not sell a bench for your VIN as factory know it came with bucket seats

—> i spoke with dealer again and they said that we could not order seat with them as GMC will not allow our VIN to have bench

dealer also said that if we order bench via other means then all GMC warranties will automatically be voided on car (that will happen on first visit to any dealer for repair or maintenance)

(Texas dealer was vague on purchase back of car but your estimate was correct that it would be a 10-15k hit)

(Once you decide on which way you would like to go i can negotiate at better deal locally to avoid Shipping of cars 2x (4,000 cost)

(2016 Denali orders will begin in August / September and then take 6-8 weeks for delivery)

b) Radio - are you looking to replace with an Alpine (or other radio) or just upgrade speakers?

-> Stefano said that they can do either and if you put in Alpine you would not lose Bluetooth and other functionalities that came with car factory radio

c) Lights - Stefano will forward pictures for your review

d) Black Carpet - Please confirm same material as existing carpet just in black

Please advise
Thank you

Vibrating noise on seat is caused by your Lane Departure Settings

Please review pages 14-15 of attached to turn off
