Hi Jeffrey,

This apartment was my one chance to move out of [REDACTED] house. Staying with [REDACTED] was never the plan for good. And I thought me helping out was so [REDACTED] could travel with you, and now I found out she had a full time job, and made more money than I did. No one even thought it was important to discuss anything with me and include me in that decision making. And I feel betrayed. I struggled this entire year with hopes that I could get an apartment for myself and this was all I could come up with. And now I can't even [REDACTED] [REDACTED]. What do you suggest I do? I think the best option is for me to get [REDACTED] because her [REDACTED] is causing problems for [REDACTED] and apartment. You both didn't think it important to talk to me about all of this when my life is being effected as a result of [REDACTED] decisions. we aren't sharing [REDACTED], yet [REDACTED]. I agreed to do this even with all of the danger involved because I cared about you and your happiness. And I feel like my happiness wasn't even considered. I'm not asking for some of her money, just [REDACTED] so I can live the life I want [REDACTED].

Thanks,
