If you are referring to an approach to the broader future of the asset given the performance levels and leverage, then no. It will be addressed during the course of the balance of this month as I look at the capex plans etc and speak further with bppr. I believe, however, that your questions regarding the early period accounting etc about which you have made inquiry, I believe that management is in touch with your accountants on that and other inquiries about which requests were made and I am certain all of those questions will have been addressed by the end of the week. On that front I will then be awaiting your direction with regards to the proposals I made when we were last together.
