Great. I'll take a look at these and let you know if I have any questions / concerns.

Off topic:

I saw this earlier today and thought the boss might find it interesting from both a technical and from an education standpoint. It's an 8 minute video explaining in common-terms how public-key/private-key encryption (which is the main encryption system used on the internet) works:

(You may want to skip the first 2 minutes, it's just a history of the internet.)
