

From: [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]>
To: Ben Goertzel <[REDACTED]>
Cc: Jeffrey Epstein <[REDACTED]>
Subject: [REDACTED] article published
Date: Tue, 25 Aug 2015 21:17:39 +0000

---

Hi Ben,

My [REDACTED] article is published! See this link: [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

I'll follow up with you shortly about setting up an [REDACTED] conference with them for next Fall. I'm in San Francisco and back home tomorrow.

Am cc'ing Jeffrey.

all the best,

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

cell: [REDACTED]

email: [REDACTED]

----- Forwarded Message -----

From: [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]>
To: Ben Goertzel <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Monday, August 24, 2015 11:21 AM
Subject: [REDACTED] article

Dear Ben,

I hope you are well. I finally placed the [REDACTED] article with [REDACTED]. The ceo/editor is [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] has become the [REDACTED] for technology subjects and its role in society. They host [REDACTED] and are an incredibly dynamic group. Please take a look at their website: [REDACTED]. Let me know if you have any interest in putting together a conference on your work and where you think [REDACTED] is headed today and I will send your proposal to them. [REDACTED] has wide global coverage.

[REDACTED] initially wanted this piece but then retracted because they felt the [REDACTED] was too corrupt... (seemed myopic to me). The [REDACTED] also wanted it but was only going to include a small snippet in a larger [REDACTED] segment that they're doing in September.

So I thought [REDACTED] was a good fit especially since they are global and have a [REDACTED] [REDACTED] that can be tapped into.

The editor asked me if I could get an image for the article. Do you have one of you and [REDACTED] [REDACTED] that they could use?

I will send you the link when published.

Thank you in advance,
Best wishes,

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]