2K for the configuration I put together with Dell
(This is a tower workstation desktop as they are the strongest, not a laptop, and includes a screen)

I could look for less but it would obviously have a direct relationship to output quality.
I can send you the configurations and break down as well for different costs.

My worst thing on this planet would be to make you uncomfortable so I have greatest respect for whatever you prefer. And it doesn't mean I would never get one if I do it on my own, will just take a little longer to work something out :)

Dear Jeffrey...

I did all the research for a machine that can render my [REDACTED] work in [REDACTED]. It must be windows and generally better to order online where they have solid state drives and built in discrete graphics cards. I found one for a good deal.

Dell just phoned me however and said they can't process it on my english card and I have to use an american card.

My amex has a limit so the good thing is I can never exceed that.

I was wondering whether you would mind if I put it on there and then I can do one of two things...

I could draw the money from the bank in increments (probably would take 10 days) and give to Bella, Or if I reach the limit I put anything further for that month on my UK card.

I would rely on school but they are keeping such silly hours for the summer holiday. (They used to be open 24 hours and I could work well into the night)
