Hi Jeffrey,

This is what we are thinking for the post-Cuba event in NYC. Still need to work out venue (your place?). Will also need accommodations and travel for people coming in. I've included a sample list of people and open to your other insights. Let us know what you think.

Project Icarai

A long-time supporter of many of the World's top scientists and "out of the box" thinkers and innovators, Jeffery Epstein has a keen interest in the development of new insights that advance knowledge and the human condition.

Whether a top musician, artist, scientist, athlete, or businessman, achieving success requires disciplined focus of attention, comfort in exploring the unknown, and passion. For such high psychological toll is often incurred in this endeavour which can lead to a mind and body out of balance and being mis-understood by modern society.

We are organising a two-day workshop to explore and understand the development of "Icarai" towards providing a network that promotes self knowledge toward empowering them to share their insights and abilities with the world.

We will invite 12 people with unique talents and abilities, along with people who research neuroscience and personal development. Each of the individuals have demonstrated excellent in their field or unique abilities not yet explained by science. The purpose is to learn how human brain is able to perceive and experience the world by studying these edge cases and understanding what makes them different to others and, common with each other.

This workshop serves as the first of a series of events around the world to understand how to identify, study, and sustainably support "Icarai" through community. The events will also facilitate interdisciplinary approaches to understanding human development, intelligence, mental health, and human potential.
