Mr. Epstein,

In order for this to look aesthetically pleasing and not amateur looking the two shower control valves need to be relocated as per attached revised drawing - they did not look good stacked on top of each other. Danny E and V are in agreement with this as they area is very confining.

1. the left valve will control the fixed shower head
2. the right valve will control the hand help shower
3. Both are the same height 48" as the top shower control valve in your master bath

Is this change approved?

one more drawing coming in a separate email for approval
