

From: Ramsey Elkholy <[REDACTED]>
To: jeffrey E. <jeevacation@gmail.com>
Subject: Re: Question/L'official
Date: Thu, 19 Jan 2017 11:28:39 +0000

Harper's? But what about my legal fees? I'd like those f-ers to reimburse me I don't think it's fair for them to waste my time and $ like that. I'll need to litigate in paris.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 19, 2017, at 5:00 AM, jeffrey E. <jeevacation@gmail.com> wrote:

not a good beginning i would advise you to find something else.

On Thu, Jan 19, 2017 at 5:40 AM, Ramsey Elkholy <[REDACTED]> wrote:

L'official is being really seedy and trying to change the terms of the agreement without discussing with me first, it's a constant back and forth French style - I feel like I'm in a Turkish bazaar trying to buy a carpet or something. I walked away from the US deal because they were trying to put together an agreement that would validate 50% of my shares only after 24 months, after which time the majority partner would have the power to change the valuation and thereby dilute my shares. Really sneaky stuff, and I just stepped back and acted dumb. My main focus was on Brazil, much cheaper shares and would get me the same results (pussy). But now they're being shady again and even tho I can prove that they are not negotiating in good faith and have therefore breached the terms of our MoU agreement I don't know if the French courts would reimburse me for any damages such as legal fees, trip to Brazil, etc.

Do you know anything about how these things work in Paris? In the US I could litigate and at some point when they would start racking up the legal fees some settlement could be reached. Not sure how that works in Paris or how something like this could be resolved (I'm not prepared to pay an attorney 12k USD for a deal that falls through). The other question is do you know any good attorneys in Paris? I mean somebody well known enough that a mere phone call or letter from him would cause them to reconsider their current course of action.

I'll be in Brazil in a couple weeks. I hoped to have this deal done by then, but they keep dragging things out. I never knew French people to be so seedy.

Sent from my iPhone

--

please note

The information contained in this communication is confidential, may be attorney-client privileged, may constitute inside information, and is intended only for the use of the addressee. It is the property of JEE

Unauthorized use, disclosure or copying of this communication or any part thereof is strictly prohibited and may be unlawful. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us immediately by return e-mail or by e-mail to jeevacation@gmail.com, and destroy this communication and all copies thereof, including all attachments. copyright -all rights reserved