Larry

It's a $24 million dollar aircraft, I think I can get the guy to take $22 million. As you may know the Gulfstream market in particular the 2000 on aircraft are desirable still fetching sensible money. At $22, that's $500k less than wholesale excluding the chosen optional extras. My boss handed this aircraft to me this afternoon to look into moving quickly after a recent conversation with the owner, I thought of suggesting it to you guys first.

Higher budget than he wants to spend I know but on value for money it's a go. The interior is good condition however it won't be to your bosses taste I'm confident so bank on an interior, we do have a full interior design specialist employed who would really make this something special.

On the plus side it's a rear galley, sensible hours and US based. I believe a member of the family past away which has motivated the urgency for sale so they have said find offers.

I've attached a spec for you with some pictures. Let me know what you think, I know it's a long shot but worth the email!

Kind regards

Hi Larry

How is everything going? Quick email to check all is ok and ask if you found your Gulfstream? This is a real wildcard but I wanted to know if your boss would consider a GV instead if the deal was considered very strong? I have a 2001 GV that's very motivated to sell and drop has dropped the price, I know he will drop to a very strong price if your man would consider it.

Let me know what you think and we can speak soon.

Kind regards
