Just spoke with Dan Hackman and he told me the following:

His two bosses are two young crazy guys who live on the edge

He started with company 14 months ago hoping to change them

His 14 months with the company was more than the previous 3 employees in his role

Each of them were accused of stealing and he is concerned that they will make the same accusations against him

He was very uncomfortable in his role as they had him supplying information to banks for loans that he deemed improper

We are one of many customers who are currently in a lawsuit with them

He then went on to tell me about his experience which you can see in his attached resume

He concluded by saying that we have no chance of losing lawsuit if it goes to court and he is on our side

Please advise
