we decided to paint lower level as an afterthought. this was not on our original list. I discussed this with joe before scheduling. joe then wanted house to air out for a minimum of four days. painting done; house now airing. I talked to joe about this before deciding to paint to see if timing conflicted with his schedule. he didnt complain to me about it. if I hear a comment about house from a broker, and its easy to respond to, I try to address it. I dont think its a case of house not finished.
