

From: Ian Osborne <[REDACTED]>
To: Jeffrey Epstein <jeevacation@gmail.com>
Subject: Re:
Date: Wed, 30 Jan 2013 17:02:28 +0000

Sure, Samsung are definitely attuned to the problem. They debate themselves whether it is better to build their own OS vs. customising Android further. In the meantime, they are doing both. (Their OS has limited roll-out starting in Korea this fall. Their teams are already trying to customise Android further but I would agree with you that the results aren't exactly stunning).

I think a meeting b/w JK Shin and Sinofsky would be a good idea. I have JK in London on Friday and will consult with him, but the best option might be the weekend of 9-10 Feb, when he and I will likely be in Washington.

On 28 Jan 2013, at 15:39, Jeffrey Epstein <[REDACTED]> wrote:

samsung mobile ahs the pronblem of getting its softwre from google and hten modifiying it, they have 25k peopl in software , but it is looked as if it were just agnother componemt. the hardware is vital but the real differnces are software, jy is searching for a way to be more inmdependent of google and floundering , you might consider a meeting wtih chin and steve sinfosky,

--

The information contained in this communication is confidential, may be attorney-client privileged, may constitute inside information, and is intended only for the use of the addressee. It is the property of Jeffrey Epstein Unauthorized use, disclosure or copying of this communication or any part thereof is strictly prohibited and may be unlawful. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us immediately by return e-mail or by e-mail to jeevacation@gmail.com, and destroy this communication and all copies thereof, including all attachments. copyright -all rights reserved