She names ██████████ Jeffrey. You must have left quite an impression for her to make such a historically off-piste choice. Regarding the below: that's more or less an accurate description of the story. I'm assuming she's one of your former wards? Is she for real? I can't imagine this is a story that could be turned into much of a film, if so she'd need the ██████████ film industry on board, or for them to have taken special interest. It's not a compelling enough piece for an American filmmaker to bother, but if she's somehow a big shot and wants to ██████████ that would be a challenging great way to start the year. But if she's just a blonde who harbours secret dreams of Hollywood, then ██████████.

I've had a lot of friends die but I've not been to too many mem services. And never a single bar mitzvah but ██████████. The only memorial service I remember affecting me for its sincerity and joy was ██████████. I think he was neglectful of his children, but they rose above it gracefully and spoke honestly at the service.

not surprised. -- sorry, i just spent a half hour on the phone with woody, listening to the similaritys between memorial services and bar mitzvahs. having to make inane speeches, fake emotions, tired old faces, old ideas, hypocritical blather, question, but when do you actually have to go to one. your own childs. your parents .
