

From: Mark LLOYD <[REDACTED]>

To: jeevacation@gmail.com

Subject: This just might be of interest...

Date: Tue, 29 Oct 2013 11:04:35 +0000

Attachments: 130722_Aspen_Final.pdf

---

Jeffrey,

I thought I would send you this just in case it might be of interest. The two founding partners of Eisvogel Capital, Christophe Jungels-Winkler and Robert Basset-Cross are impressive.

Robert was in the SAS and won the Military Cross for gallantry. No mean feat. He was then recruited by your chum Jamie Dimon to help motivate middle management at JP Morgan ( Apparently Jamie Dimon asked General David Petraeus who would be the best man for the job and he said "Rob Basset Cross"!).

When Rob was in the British Army he was dealing with the most advanced communication systems and is well acquainted with both the NSA and GCHQ. This means he really knows his stuff.

I thought if you were still in Paris you might enjoy meeting them.

Let me know.

As ever,

Mark