 This Week on Kickstarter

DECEMBER 15, 2011

This week's projects will help you hit the road — no matter where you want to go. Accompany a team of filmmakers through some of our most pristine natural landscapes, bring the kids to a big city, or close your eyes and let the music take you away. Bon voyage!

Saving grace

Last May, California announced plans to close a quarter of their 250+ state parks. Wanting to see these pristine regions before they're gone forever, a team of young filmmakers embarked on a journey across the thousands of acres of park land, wildlife reserves, and wilderness that are threatened by the legislation. Their documentary is a testament to what truly stands to be lost: some of the most magnificent natural landscapes in the world.

Hog wild

Even though they just graduated, the seven lads behind PigPen Theatre Co. have earned plenty of accolades, including a critical nod from the New York International Fringe Festival, and have performed before sold-out audiences across the East Coast. Their growing success and undeniable charm (just watch the project video, you'll see) mean that it's about time they released a "Best of" compilation — score!

When in Rome

ZigZag City Guides were designed to accompany school-age kids on big city travels with their parents. Each guide features the adorably illustrated characters Zig and Zag, a pack of activity cards, a fold-out map, and an easy-to-carry folder. With activities like "Can you spot these boats?" in Venice and "Can you find these fruits for sale?" in Rome, we're hard-pressed to think that parents wouldn't want to play along.
