A Series of Myths Regarding the "Framework Agreement" with Iran

On April 2, 2015, the P5+1 (USA, Germany, France, United Kingdom, China and Russia) announced they had agreed on "The Framework for a Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action on Iran's Nuclear Program" that will serve as the basis for negotiations aimed at reaching an agreement by June 30, 2015, that would prevent Iran from acquiring nuclear weapons. A variety of myths have arisen related to the Iranian nuclear program in general, and the terms of the framework agreement in particular. The following facts address the most popular myths.

Time for a Campus Reality-Check -- Part 2

Last week, I tried to temper the false sense of American campuses being on fire with anti-Semitic and anti-Israel activity. This week I'd like to address the equally fallacious fear that the boycott, divestment and sanctions (BDS) movement is sweeping the nation.

As I said in the previous column, by looking at the empirical facts and putting the data in context I am in no way suggesting we don't have problems on campus. The vigilance, rapid response, education and training provided by a host of organizations has helped Jewish students deter and defeat the BDS movement at almost every turn.

Fact of the Week

Iran Gave Hamas Millions of Dollars in Aid to Rebuild Their Military Infrastructure

A report published by The Telegraph newspaper on April 4, 2015, detailed that Iran had been funneling millions of dollars to Hamas to help them rebuild their network of terror tunnels that were destroyed during Operation Protective Edge. The Iranian funding also assisted Hamas in replenishing their missile stockpiles.
