Warfare: The New Rules - The Cyber Threat to States, Businesses and All of Us

Mon 23rd Oct, 7pm, Emmanuel Centre

Speakers

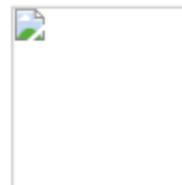

'This is a new kind of Cold War and it is just getting started. We may in the 19th century have fought wars on land and sea and in the 20th century moved to the air, but in the 21st wars will be increasingly fought in cyberspace.' These are the words of Hillary Clinton when she was in the UK last weekend. She warned that the Kremlin is using the internet to foment trouble, fanning the flames of nationalism and populism, with the aim of breaking up the European Union and Nato.

The threat of cyber warfare is not only coming from Russia. Just this week Iran was blamed for a 'brute force' cyber attack on Parliament that compromised MP's email accounts. And then there's terrorism: Isis are becoming ever more proficient at weaponising the internet in their propaganda war against the infidel.

To discuss the threat coming to us from the borderless space of the internet, Intelligence Squared are bringing together some of the world's top intelligence professionals and cyber experts, including Jeh Johnson, Homeland Security Secretary under President Obama, who led the agency during Russia's cyber attack on the 2016 election; Jamie Bartlett, renowned author and digital technology expert who presented the recent BBC series Secrets of Silicon Valley; and Angela Sasse, a cyber security expert with a special interest in how humans interact with technology. Chairing the discussion will be Radio 4's Today presenter and former BBC political editor Nick Robinson.

Join us next Monday on October 23rd, hear the arguments, and learn more about the new game-changing threat to international security.

This event is supported by GANT, who are bringing curiosity and learning to life as part of their Never Stop Learning credo and Couple Thinkers campaign. To find out more, please visit www.gant.co.uk.

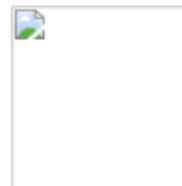

Jamie Bartlett

Author and expert on the politics of the internet. He is Director of the Centre for the Analysis of Social Media, a collaboration between the University of Sussex and the think tank Demos. He is the author of The Dark Net: Inside the Digital Underworld and Radicals: Outsiders Changing the World, and recently presented the BBC series 'Secrets of Silicon Valley'.

Jeh Johnson

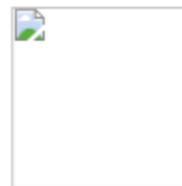

Secretary of Homeland Security from 2013 to 2017 under President Obama. In his role, he was responsible for counterterrorism, cybersecurity, border security, nuclear and biological threats, national disasters and the protection of America's critical infrastructure.

Angela Sasse

Professor of Human-Centered Technology in the Department of Computer Science, University College London. She is also director of the GCHQ-funded national research institute for the Science of Cyber Security.

Chair

Nick Robinson

Presenter on Radio 4's Today programme and former BBC political editor.
