Hi Jeffrey:) How are you?

Jeffrey, I don't know how to ask you about this... but I just don't know what to do...

Today in the morning my roommate was going to her job by bicycle, and got into the accident... her ankle and her leg are broken... she is in Bellevue hospital, where I spent whole my day, close to her.

The problem is - she doesn't have an insurance here (because she is German - and came here to work as a model).

The doctor said that for sure she needs an operation. But when they found out that she doesn't have an insurance - they said that she has to wait for surgery until Tuesday and they put her on a waiting list.. but she is dying of pain... she can't stop crying...

they put her leg in cast and keep injecting a huge amount of morphine... but it just doesn't help... she still suffering sooo much...

They said they might send her back home until Tuesday and just let her back for a surgery... but it's just doesn't sound right to me... like I won't be able to care about her properly until Tuesday - I don't have any medicines, any morphine, anything to keep her calm...

Jeffrey, I don't know what to do... Obviously she doesn't have anybody here - her family is in Germany, her boyfriend is in Tokyo right now (he is also model) and she doesn't have anyone here except me... And I just feel so useless, seeing her pain and not being able to help her :(

Can I ask you... do you have any connection or any doctor-friends who can help somehow... I feel like even one phone call can change the whole situation...

You know me - I wouldn't ask for myself, but I just can't see someone suffering that much..

Please if you can help us somehow - I would really appreciate it!!! and if not... it's ok... I'll try to find some other way...

■ sorry again that I shared with you my problem, I know you are super busy, I know you are away and I know there is a hundreds people asking you about help everyday... but it's just nightmare!!!

Thank you,
Polina...
