Some more ideas...armoires divided into different styles:

1920s-1940s: cleaner lines, grayed oak/distressed finishes, or light oak finishes with unique details...would mix well with the rope bed

Moroccan_Anglo-Indian_Southeastern Pacific: more primitive, but still sophisticated...would mix well with a simple bed

Prior 1900_European: not sure it's right but some of the pieces were pretty stunning...liked the Dutch piece, but it needs a really large room

More ideas on the way...

Got it...OK...I'll send you a few things...I would love to add antiques (wasn't sure how far to go)...so I'll send you some ideas for those as well...morrocan tile would be fantastic!

Re: the rope, no problem in the tropics...

The models are helpful to see scale and layout...we've modeled the furniture very simply so that we can sketch over them when we meet...I'll go ahead a model Cabana 2 today...knowing the furniture selections are being revised...

My best,
Amy

maybe moroccan instead of balinese. more refined, though primitive. paint schemes are also part o =project. and maybe we do morrocan tile in bath? It should look primitive but sophisticated, . too

african too predictbale
